Chief Counsel's Office, Attention: Comment Processing,
Office of the Comptroller of the Currency
400 7th St. SW, Suite 3E-218, Washington, DC 20219
Comments on Docket ID OCC-2021-0023

To whom it may concern,

Attached are the signatures and comments of 4,863 individuals who signed onto the following statement in just four days through the Sierra Club.

Thank you, Comptroller Hsu, for taking up the issue of climate change and banks.

Even as banks publicly claim to be taking climate change seriously and announce new climate plans, they have continued to invest billions into fossil fuels every year. Through these investments, banks are directly fueling the climate crisis- putting our most vulnerable communities, our financial system, and our planet at risk.

Regulators must not let financial institutions gamble with our future. We need you to push banks to take the urgent steps necessary to address the dangers they face from climate change and stop their reckless investment decisions from endangering our economy and communities.

I support the proposed guidance's recommendations to banks that they:
incorporate climate-related risk management into every level of business;
plan for climate change over a long time horizon, and update models as additional data becomes available;
develop clear definitions of possible climate-related risk exposures and metrics for setting limits; and make sure that their internal strategies are consistent with their public-facing climate commitments.

The OCC must ensure that banks' actions match their commitments to zeroing out their net carbon emissions. Banks' management of climate risk should be factored into their supervisory ratings, too.

It is in the best interest of both the public and banks themselves to act now to minimize climate risk. The OCC must use the full extent of its authority to issue strong final guidance to banks on climate risk, continue to protect against unsafe and unsound bank practices, and require remedies from banks where appropriate.

1,084 of these signers, you might also notice, added their own additional personal comments. If there are any questions about this statement or our positions on this matter do not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,
Ben Cushing
Campaign Manager, Fossil-Free Finance

A bank cannot speak a message of concern for climate change, and for those who are experiencing the negative results of that change, while "fueling" the reason why that change is continuing to worsen.

3. Eric Hints

Boulder, CO 80304

A changing climate will change the playing conditions for almost all businesses. Every one (including banks) needs to take climate change into account, and mitigate climate risks.

4. Mitch Long

Ketchum, ID 83340

A changing climate will lead to new businesses that will become important to the growth of our economy, and will also lead to the decline in business for other companies. It is important to the stability of our financial system that banks are being cognizant of those changes, and are not simply looking at what a business did yesterday. The proposed new guidelines will be important to ensure this happens.

About 30 years ago I went to the Canadian Rockies, and saw signposts showing where the edge of an icefield had been through a number of decades. The glacier was retreating pretty rapidly. In my lifetime we've seen climate change with disastrous results. I want my grandchildren to have a future. And short-term profits won't stave off long-term losses. Climate risk is real and financial firms must recognize this and act for the common good.

About time to take climate change seriously isn't it, or do you not care about the world your kids and grandkids will live in either?

10. Chuck Jennes

According to the US Government leadership and the scientific community, climate change is the most serious existential threat faced by the planet. It's critical to make sure that public policy reflects this. While I understand that a transition is imperative, I would also suggest that we don't make it too open ended. If anything, incentives to help the fossil fuel industry make that transition to clean energy in a very timely manner. The banking industry can play a critical and profitable role in this process.
Thank you!

Action follows the money. Stop funding activities that are costing our country and citizens massive economic costs in terms of disaster relief, food insecurity, property insurance costs, health costs, etc. Look to the long term.

fast enough to begin reducing the human impacts.

All banks should incorporate climate-related requirements into their governance, planning, and risk management. Banks should have to protect communities by taking climate risk seriously.

All financial institutions?particularly banks?should consider Climate Change a priority affecting their customers, their communities, and the financial well being of the entire country. Continuing to invest in fossil fuel companies and projects for immediate financial gains only increases the likelihood that the very worst climate-change consequences will occur. Such a course of action is not only fiscally short-sighted but morally reprehensible.

As customer, I deposit my money in banks and I want them to invest that money in projects that lessen climate disruption. I actually switched my deposit accounts from a big bank that finances fossil fuel projects to a smaller one that does not. I wish I didn't have to make that switch. All banks should use the money entrusted to them for projects that benefit us and future generations.

As a resident of over-drilled and polluted western Colorado, I know firsthand the long-term destruction caused by extractive industry, as we who live where they drill know the truth!

50. Marianne Mitosinka

As a retired banker, I know a lot about assessing risk. Climate change is the greatest risk that all of us face and it must be clearly disclosed in financial statements.

51. Paul Huddy

As a scientist, I realize that climate change is the biggest threat to our lives, our economy and our society. It is madness to continue supporting outdated 1800s technology and other harmful practices that contribute to our destruction.

52. Rachel Shipman

As a service to Americans I expect climate security from banks. The USA and the earth are heading into a climate crisis. I do not want my grandchildren to have to wear Oxygen masks to survive!! Stop supporting climate destruction with fossil fuel and other polluters.

As a veteran public educator and Native American, I believe teachers must help ensure a healthy environment for future generations.

54. Elaine Arnold
New York, NY 10003

As a world class institution Chase needs to no longer support fossil fuel companies that are destroying our shared world. Global warming is the biggest challenge we face and we do know what needs to be done - divest fossil fuels and support alternative energy.

55. Krysten Garcia
Baltimore, MD 21211

As a young woman who hopes to have children someday, it is scary to think of bringing a child into a planet that is dying. I feel like it is my moral and personal responsibility, and all of our responsibility, to do everything we can to ensure that the next generation can have a livable and healthy future. I recently made the personal choice not to participate in my employer's 401k plan because of big bank's investment in fossil fuels. But individual choices like these will not end the climate crisis. We need bold action from people in power like you to hold banks accountable. Choosing to not act is choosing to allow climate change to irreversibly destroy the planet and cause needless suffering and death. I implore you not to make that choice.

56. Nicole C. Raeburn PhD
Richmond, CA 94804

As an actively engaged and deeply concerned resident of Richmond, California, home of the horribly polluting Chevron refinery, I call on you to do all in your power to stop funding fossil fuels. Failure to act will lead to irreversible climate catastrophe.

57. Jaak Saame
Penn Grove, CA 94951

As an engineer who worked as an engineering manager for the design and construction of power plants across the country, I know we must stop using fossil fuels. It can be done and big banks can help.

58. Scott Dahlquist
Richfield, MN 55423

As evidence continues to mount that climate change is real, that human activity is the major contributing factor, and that some corporations tried to suppress this knowledge, it is imperative that climate change be factored into financing decisions.

59. Marion Black
Akron, OH 44303

As individuals, our ability is very limited to influence the financial institutions we depend on. We need you, as the regulators, to push them to take responsible positions that will make our future less painful and disruptive. Not to mention less catastrophically expensive! I use a credit Union for personal banking, but my investments and other dealings include banks that don't want or heed my input. It's your job to represent me, and I hope you do.

60. Katherine Boardman
Minneapolis, MN 55419

As someone in my thirties, I need the world to be habitable in my sixties and later. Banks investing in fossil fuels are just investing in danger for their customers' lives and livelihoods.

61. Anthony Bond
New Bern, NC 28562

As they say money talks! So the banking industry could make a large impact by protecting the environment for future generations.

62. Marcia Gustafson
Mankato, MN 56001

As you know, the climate crisis is a global issue. We must work together to stop global warming at 1.5 degrees C. I have had the privilege of traveling to Pacific island nations and territories. The Republic of the Marshall Islands will literally disappear if we do not stop at this limit. Banks must quickly reduce their investments in fossil fuels and increase their investments in renewable energy. Your proposed guidance recommendations for banks to address climate change is a critical step toward that end.

63. Randy Smith

Fishersville, VA 22939

At some point, the existential crisis and need for immediate action regarding the climate crisis must be recognized and short-term financial considerations be subordinated. It really comes down to a question of pay now or pay later, and believe me, the "pay later" will be disastrous for financial markets and firms don't heed and act now.

64. Chris Tandy

20176, VA 20176

At the rate we're going there isn't going to be anything left for future generations. It's beyond time to invest in climate solutions, and stop investing in fossil fuels.

65. Paul Foppe

San Francisco, CA 94122

At this point, the environment needs every part of society - from tree huggers to bankers - to help swing the momentum on climate change.

66. Anne Randolph

Yellow Springs, OH 45387

Bank investments in fossil fuels all over the world are putting vulnerable communities at risk by fueling climate change. Climate change threatens all species of life, including humans, and must be stopped before it is too late. Banks must take responsibility by not funding extractive industries that contribute to climate chaos.

67. Michael Carpenter

Troy, MI 48083

Bank policies can and should be a powerful tool to curb commercial behaviors that continue to promote climate change. Accounting for environmental risks is clearly necessary for the extended health of businesses and the public.

68. C O

Bankers think money. It is high time we choose bankers with a conscience!

69. Richard Hill

Fair Oaks, CA 95628

Banking finance rules are what control the size and timing of large investments that directly impact the direction of climate change. Banks therefore are key to managing climate change and must manage climate risk in analyzing business risk. Adopt appropriate rules to minimize or eliminate risks our children must face.

70. Carl Franzen

Minneapolis, MN 55419

73. Holly Currens-Wray

Banks and all the financial market should be taking climate change very seriously. Make them if they do not as it affects our future. I'm sick of business acting for their immediate profit and ignoring the obvious.

74. Janice Jones

El Cerrito, CA 94530

Banks and every other business need to take climate change seriously. They have enormous power for real change.

75. Karen Jacques

Sacramento, CA 95811

Banks are a huge part of the climate problem. They continue funding fossil fuel operations, despite knowing the harm that the climate crisis is causing. Banks have to be held accountable for their dangerous, climate chaos driving investments. In the name of short term profit, they are leaving today's children and future generations without a future.

76. Maria Gajewski

Dunedin, FL 34698

Banks are a vital part of financing green infrastructure. Restricting their ability to spend money on climate change contributing projects will send more funding to green initiatives. This rule change is vital for our nation's future.

77. Edward Shields

Grand Portage, MN 55605

Banks are bankrolling environmental destabilization and a mass extinction of wild species. Banks should have some civic responsibilities besides their overwhelming greed. We need regulations!

78. Nancy Gehlhausen

Oakland City, IN 47660

Banks are in a perfect position to help mitigate our climate crisis. We ALL must do our part.

79. Linda Kroeger

Seattle, WA 98117

Banks are supposed to help direct the future of businesses and people with their future plans. How can we listen to entities, banks, when they don't care about the future and keep backing the same old, destructive policies. Banks need to take a lead on where we are going to protect the planet we all live in. We have to protect this earth as everyone can't jump ship and go to the moon or mars and don't want to. Climate has to be the 1st consideration of helping any company--their approach to climate change which means how and where it will take that company and the people that work there. Banks should be responsible to everyone not just big corporations and their harmful policies.

80. Mark Madsen

Iowa City, IA 52246

Banks assume responsibility for the negative results of the pollution from the projects they sponsor.

82. Mary Raven

Banks can have a very powerful role in addressing Climate Change. This is your chance to save the planet! Please, yes do account for climate risk!

83. Jennifer Lutje

El Cajon, CA 92022

Banks can have an enormous influence on which businesses thrive. By choosing to invest in fossil fuel companies, banks are slowly destroying the planet, along with the companies they invest in. Stop the money flow into fossil fuels and let these companies die.

84. Nina Dutton

Banks' continued investments in fossil fuels are driving climate change -- a crisis that puts vulnerable communities, our financial system, and our planet at risk. Fossil; fuels, oil and gas (particularly Co2 & methane) pollution and other emissions from the oil and gas industry are impacting our communities far and wide
The use of oil products is a primary cause of Global Warming and environmental pollution. We need to be stopping its use, not supporting it. It matters to me because:

1) I'd like to be able to continue living on this planet which is becoming increasingly threatened;

2) I'd like to share this planet with at least some of the plant and wildlife we haven't already driven to extinction.

89. Jean Kroll

Banks' continued investments in fossil fuels is wrong because it places our communities, financial system, and planet at risk. I believe that an alternative fuel source may be discovered in the near future that will be less damaging to the planet, solar power for example.

93. Laura Zerr

Banks continued support of ill conceived plans for fossil fuel extraction and transportation/pipelines has had a detrimental impact on our waters and sensitive eco-systems. This along with environmental racism or classism are practices that must be stopped and projects more closely examined before funding.

94. Norbert Kovacs

Banks fund oil and gas pipelines. Oil and gas feeds global warming. If banks stop funding oil and gas, we can put a brake on global climate change.

95. Marion Lakatos
Croton on Hudson, NY 10520
Banks give support to new fossil fuel projects that will continue to destroy our planet. It is time the banks took climate change seriously and no longer bankroll the fossil fuel industry and the destruction to forests.

96. Richard Stuckey
Chicago, IL 60614
Banks have a great capability to prevent further damage to the environment by stopping funding companies that are destroying our climate. Furthermore they are making very bad investments as many of the projects they are financing are not going to be successful for long enough for the companies to earn money to pay their loans off. There are so many opportunities to finance projects that will get us to a renewable, sustainable economy. Do us all a favor and invest in them rather than giving money to the polluters.

97. Edward Johnson

Banks have an important "obligation" to help in the fight against global warming. It is long overdue that they lend a hand for those folks that use American banks for business and personnel transactions. Citizens of our great nations deserve to have these banks help our nation fight global warming with monetary support!!!!

102. Ara Marderosian
Weldon, CA 93283
Banks have been ignoring the growing risks of climate change, and putting our own savings and global lives at risk. The new guidance for big banks lay out expectations for response to climate threats. I support new guidelines requiring banks to take climate risk seriously and stop investing in fossil fuels.

103. Arlene Hansen

BANKS HAVE BEEN LENDING $$$$$$ TO MANY "NON-GREEN" ENTITIES. PLEASE, DIVEST YOURSELVES OF FUNDING THESE ANTI'CLIMATE GROUPS. WE NEED OUR WORLD/EARTH TO LAST MUCH LONGER THAN CURRENT PREDICTIONS!

104. Roland Dumas
Napa, CA 94558

Banks have no incentive to invest with environmental responsibility without regulatory guidance

105. Janet Muir
Marcellus, NY 13108

Banks have power over countries that the U.S. doesn't, so they are the ones who can stop deforestation and oil and gas drilling beyond our borders. Climate destruction does not recognize borders either.

106. Barrie Collins
Wallingford, CT 6492

Banks hold all the money I have. They MUST figure out a way to protect my assets with the overwhelming need to correct their own behavior because GLOBAL WARMING IS HERE. Start investing in GREEN ENERGY. It is the ONLY way to the future!

107. Laura A Napoli
North Hollywood, CA 91601

Banks must be held accountable. If they keep investing in the extinction of our globe then they can't be allowed to carry on business. They are killing people and the planet.

108. Geraldine January
Las Cruces, NM 88011

Banks must be more aware of the climate problems created by some of their buyers. Lending money to build new oil or gas resources damages the frail and over taxed

Climate. Banks are a significant factor in supporting ?you can never have enough? thinking and make profit from the ignorance and/or greed of climate damaging companies.

109. Nancy Preston
New York, NY 10028

Banks must do their part - we are all in this together.

110. Vesa Kaakkuriniemi
Holtsville, NY 11742

Banks must follow non-fossil investment plan that also enables natural protection and ecological production of goods and services. Energy efficiency and non-wood renewable energy should be high in their priorities.

111. Marilyn Eng
Diamond Bar, CA 91765

Banks must invest in companies, health care, and other businesses that support efforts to address climate change!! Stop with the fossil fuels. I support the new regulations that ask these organizations to start planning on ways to combat climate change.

112. Bob Macpherson
Santa Fe, NM 87505

Banks must serve the people!

113. Nancy Hale
West Saint Paul, MN 55118

Banks MUST stop funding fossil fuels & START funding wind & solar projects to save our planet.

114. Chris Jenkins
Minneapolis, MN 55407

Banks must use their power and influence to protect our environment and mitigate climate risks

115. Susan Demark

New Paltz, NY 12561

Banks need to be accountable for helping our planet and people survive. They cannot go on their way as if the survival of the planet doesn't matter, and must not foster a future of fossil fuels that imperils our children and grandchildren.

116. Joseph Jacob

Pittsboro, NC 27312

Banks need to face the fact that they are only ?shooting themselves in the foot? by delaying facing the realities of a fossil fuel caused climate crisis. Their investments are only going to ?blow up in their faces?.

117. Jen Munm

Inverness, FL 34450

Banks need to know that We The People are going to Grab Our Wallets and use institutions that reflect corporate responsibility.

118. Rebecca Burmester

Raleigh, NC 27612

Banks need to recognize their role in climate change.

119. Dennis Rice

Washougal, WA 98671

Banks need to support corporations that consider the impacts their money has on our environment. We need to get away from the expansion of the fossil fuel industry and invest in alternatives energy sources.

120. Paula Morgan

Winter Springs, FL 32708

Banks need to take climate change seriously as it effects all of us, including themselves and their families. What horrible threat to go to the gutter to pick up a penny. Disgusting.

121. Judy Gayer

McLean, VA 22101

Banks play a critical part in our economy and can make an enormous difference in our country's ability to meet its climate goals. The future is a bleak one if we don't stop investing in fossil fuels and their infrastructure, and we have no time to waste!

122. Paul Kazyak

Westminster, MD 21157

Banks routinely integrate other risks into their lending strategies, so why not incorporate a risk that is more clearly existential every day? Please do the right thing for our children and grandchildren- future generations will thank you for it.

123. Kaye Fenley

Lake Placid, FL 33852

Banks should help individuals have affordable access to solar energy to reduce their energy costs.

124. Douglas Kowalewski

Lake In the Hills, IL 60156

Banks should not finance destruction of the planet and all of humanity!

125. Eileen Simonson

Banks should only be allowed to support those portions of fossil fuel companies which are working on research and development to improve climate, or such things as grid improvement.

126. Mary Troland
Oceanside, NY 11572
Banks should stop backing fossil fuel projects that contribute to climate change.

127. Thomas Grout
Ithaca, NY 14850
Banks should stop investing in fossil fuel and start investing in renewable fuel development to reduce climate change.

128. Rachel Berg
New York, NY 10036
Banks should stop taking advantage of people who are not financially savvy enough to keep up with them.

129. Kathy DeVos
Whitestone, NY, NY 11357
Banks shouldn't fund the ruin of millions for their own greed. Stop funding the demise of us.

130. Dion Duckett
Franklin, OH 45005
Banks will lose more than anyone when mortgages default due to homes and business go underwater (literally) or burn down due to fires. BANKS must consider the future environment before granting loans

131. Adelheid Koepfer
Wallingford, CT 6492
Basically: banks need to stop the greenwashing, and shift investments from fossil fuel projects (and from false solutions like carbon capture) to renewable energy, energy efficiency and climate change mitigation!

Big Banks are not only risking our lives by investing in Polluting fossil fuels but also investing our money, held in their banks, in an old, outdated, enterprise. Similar to investing in whaling ships when whales were on the brink of extinction.

Big banks have a moral obligation to be role models. Please ..take a stand

144. Richard Bourgin
Savage, MD 20763
Big Banks have an enormous influence on society, and with that influence comes commensurate responsibility. Climate change is the existential issue before us all. Stop funding - and therefore supporting - oil and gas projects. Your leadership in so doing will have an enormous impact in trying to minimize the climate catastrophes just around the corner.

145. Irene Gnemi

Big banks need to be just as involved as all segments of Society to tackle the universe threat of climate change.

149. Joab Schultheis
Evansville, IN 47725
Big banks need to do much more to incorporate climate change risk into their investment decisions. Investing in fossil fuels exacerbates the climate crisis, which increasingly threatens world economies and ultimately these banks' bottom lines. Our kids and grandkids will have to deal with the worst impacts of climate change. Let's do everything we can to mitigate those impacts for them starting now. I urge you to outline clear and aggressive recommendations for how big banks need to incorporate climate risk into their businesses. These institutions could do so much to affect positive change relating to climate change. Help them move more boldly and more quickly in that direction. We don't have time to waste.

150. Roberta Bailey

Burning fossil fuels is destroying the health of our people and our planet. We must stop financing destruction and invest in clean renewables.

154. Keith Thompson

Saint Paul, MN 55106

By investing in obsolete fossil fuel projects, the financial industry runs great risks that the public will need to pick up later. Curtail this idiocy now!

155. Judy Urban

Eagan, MN 55123

By monetarily supporting projects that contribute to the creation of air and water pollution by using or mining for fossil fuels, banks hold equal responsibility with the companies they lend money to for contributing to climate change. Use your resources to support clean energy projects instead.

156. Vivian Overholt

Mount Joy, PA 17552

By proposing these new guidelines, you are working toward a better future for my son and all children globally who will inherit this climate crisis.

157. Diana Heymann

West Hartford, CT 6110

By taking climate change seriously, the intent here is to have financial institutions stop funding fossil fuel companies and any of their projects. It also means calling in outstanding loans to these institutions and their projects which are in any way taking fossil fuel resources from our Mother Earth. All of these companies must be actively engaged in cleaning up the messes they have created including plastic waste in/on waterways and on any land mass, as well as clean up of oil and chemical waste of every sort in water and on land throughout the world. These last two demands can be used by financial institutions to refocus fossil fuel companies on constructive clean up processes and as incentives to keep loans from being recalled.

174. Ronni Robles

Tucson, AZ 85743

Climate change is a real and serious issue that all of us must take action to circumvent. Banks are strictly profit focused. It is up to regulators to get them to focus on the catastrophe that is climate change. Please, upgrade banking regulations that will make banks do their part to curb climate change, instead of promoting it through their business practices.

175. Linda Walker

Sun City, AZ 85351

Climate change is a serious issue. Please reconsider investments in fossil fuels, which do not have a positive impact on our climate. Thank you.

176. Janis Snead

Climate change is even affecting those of us that live in the Midwest. I believe the big banks have an obligation to get on board to work to mitigate climate change to the best of their ability to protect their customers, the futures of the younger generations and ,ultimately, their bottom lines. It seems to me a great place to start is to stop funding the fossil fuel companies.

187. James Mickelson

205. David Scheer

Climate change is REAL----it's "really" happening! And I certainly hope that YOU banks are of that belief and understanding as well, since you are the prominent money-lenders that take part in all kinds of 'developments'. And right now, the developments of greatest concern are those that work toward 'overcoming' the effects of climate change, as opposed to those that further 'increase' it. I certainly hope the banks will go the first route and lend money solely to those projects that work 'against' climate change, while simultan- eously not taking part in those that 'worsen' it! Ie., help those who would plant trees, take care of the environment, use electricity and do away with the oil, gas, and fossil fuel building approaches. Again, I'm very hopeful the bank personnel all have their heads on straight and work & lend money, etc., with this in mind: 'overcoming' climate change sure beats worsening it!

206. David Bolen
Phoenix, AZ 85007
Climate Change is serious business and Climate Crisis is an existential threat and soon it will make the COVID-19 pandemic look like a picnic. Banks can make the situation around the world worse or they can make it less bad. If they make it worse, they will likely eventually wipe themselves out, just like deluded anti-vaxxers refusing COVID-19 vaccines have so often set themselves up for disaster.

Climate disaster is too important to be left to the voluntary compliance of financial

239. Paul Hawley
Calera, AL 35040
Climate change -- and protecting the habitability of the planet -- is the overarching issue of our time, beside which all others shrink into perspective. Given the inevitability of (and the inevitable need for) controls on the "free" capitalist economy, it's essential to at least structure incentives to favor climate stability, if not to enforce certain restrictions. Dear Comptroller Hsu, I wholeheartedly support what you are doing. Please send this to all the CEO's of all the big banks- Please stop thinking of only yourself and start caring about current and future generations. Please stop lying about caring about climate change while investing in fossil fuels which are destroying our planet and causing numerous diseases- including cancer which are devastating families, including possibly your own. Please stop saying you sleep well at night, because I have no idea how you can. Money and material objects or people's lives? You are in power to make a monumental choice. Please make the right one with a kind, caring, and empathetic heart. Please.

Dear Comptroller Hsu,
I'm delighted to have this opportunity to tell you that the fossil fuel industry, enabled by our banks, are pushing our species -- humans -- to the edge of extinction even as I write. The horrific climate events of 2021 will be nothing to those of 2031 and 2041 and so onward to the end of noted history. It is your job, your obligation, to turn this tide toward our survival.
Will you do that by telling governmental regulators to take the necessary steps to protect the lives of us, our families, our children, our grandchildren, and all those who may be born into dystopia... or a green new world?

During my working year, I did a lot of bicycle commuting. In retirement I enjoy being outdoors as much as possible. I find (and a lot of recent research has shown) that contact with nature and the outdoors reduces stress and enhances my health. The continuing excessive and unnecessary use of fossil fuels endangers this for me and everyone else.

269. Claire Johnson

Each of us has a responsibility to the future health and well-being of our constituents. We must include these considerations when we invest. Banks must be included in addressing these concerns.

Every member of society, individuals and organizations, must do our part to support a sustainable future for all. Profits means nothing if we continue down our path to self-destruction.

279. John Harmon

Every person, organization - whether business, governmental agency or non-profit has a role to play in protecting the earth from ourselves. How foolish we look to have dallied in procrastination and petty differences, when instead it should be all hands on deck in the approaching storm. The wind is up and raindrops are literally falling while the seas are rising. What is needed is simple: Leadership. When opportunity comes, why are we also looking for someone else to do the hardwork, when all it would take is one simple step - do your part and show leadership by making the banking system reveal its role in allowing the death of our planet to proceed in the name of greed.

Financial firms (I bank at Chase, and support your proposals regarding it and the other banks) can't be allowed to make money on financing fossil fuels indiscriminately any more. They must be required to do ALL in their power -their sizable fair share, at least!- to help avert the coming crisis. Thank you, Comptroller Hsu, for taking up this necessary, life-saving, planet-saving work. I didn't sleep very well last night from worrying about the coming changes, and not seeing the big people taking it up, other than green-washing lip service. Finding out about your plan and intentions will help me sleep better tonight. Thank you!

For decades big banks have been pouring money into risky fossil fuel investments, ignoring the increasing risks of climate change, putting our own savings at risk! Banks continued investments in fossil fuels is driving climate change? a crisis that puts vulnerable communities, our financial system, our air, water, land, wildlife, our entire host planet in ever growing peril !! This is unsustainable, ignorant, and unconscionable!! And must stop !! It's about time, long overdue and I applaud and support that finally financial regulators have begun to take action by releasing new guidance for big banks that lays out expectations for their response to our climate crisis !! This is an extremely important first step toward protecting all the aforementioned !! And holding banks accountable for their climate commitments and to take real action to help mitigate this climate crisis!! We cannot waste anymore time!! We have to take urgent action now, before it's too late!! We're almost there now!

Fossil fuel production and attendant climate risks are dependent on financing, obviously. Banks cannot continue to profit from such financing while not accounting for and managing climate risk. Given the existential risk posed by climate change, it is incumbent on OCC to impose guidelines.

Global warming is an equal opportunity disaster that is already happening. It is way past time when our financial institutions and those who regulate them take the increasing costs every American is incurring by having to spend more public dollars in clean ups and healthcare related to the changing weather patterns. Stop investing in fossil fuels which are primary sources of greenhouse gasses. Use those monies to support clean, renewable energy sources and help innovators bring them to scale.

Guiding bank lending away from fossil fuel projects and toward green alternative projects is an especially effective way of accelerating the urgently needed green transformation of the world economy. Often, a dirty investment is only slightly more profitable than a clean one -- and yet the difference in associated emissions over decades can be gigantic. For this reason, you are one of just a handful of people who can single-handedly make a substantial contribution to saving our planet. Please do it!

320. Jennifer Gramigna

Hello. I hope you are well. Today I am respectfully reaching over to you to ask, Please grow your consciences and think before you act. You have this huge power with your money and ability to to invest in others' projects. NOW it really matters that we stop investing in things that increase the carbon footprint. As strange and new as it may feel, it is up to All of us and Especially YOU in your power position, to make the changes. Please do it for my grand child and yours. Do not give money to oil and gas pipelines that are hurting - even killing us. Consider and go with the sustainable ways for buildings going up these days. These and other careful considerations are worth the extra effort. Today I reach over to let you know I strongly support new guidelines telling banks to take climate risk seriously. Thank you for your strong efforts on behalf of all of us. I would do that for you, too! Stay well.

Hello. I worked for Wells Fargo for ten years. I think they were doing some good, progressive things, but I think they also need to do much more. Thanks for your efforts.

329. Colleen Barlow
Bel Air, MD 21015
Human beings need Clean Air and Clean Water & Land capable of sustaining plants and animals to survive. Perpetuating the fossil fuel pipeline is contributing significantly to man-made climate change and exacerbating humanity's demise. Regulatory oversight can not be manipulated by puppet strings of power and profit. Financial Investments have to consider climate impact based on actual scientific data and metrics defining and adhering to these well-known risks relative to their effects on shortening life and causing permanent damage to our collective environment.

I agree with the following statement--This is a major opportunity for financial regulators to begin fulfilling their mandates to protect our economy from climate-related risks and ensure Wall Street giants are doing their part too. We must show our support for this new guidance from the OCC, and encourage the agency to use the full extent of its authority to prevent a climate-fueled economic crash.

I am an investor, a retiree, an electric car driver, and a climate volunteer. I have divested my portfolio of all oil and gas stocks. Oil and gas holdings (not to mention coal) are going to become stranded assets and jeopardize your own portfolio.

339. Hongha Vuong

I am choosing my bank and steering my investments to ones which have relatively low in impact on global warming, but I know my efforts are tiny, partly because there is so little choice out there in the financial world. I very much look forward to your work on this life-and-death issue, and give us a better financial world to work with. Thank you.

340. Clyde Howard

I am concerned about climate change and the negative impact on our environment caused by the extraction, transport and burning of fossil fuels.

341. Shaul Rosen-Rager
Hemet, CA 92543

I am concerned about the future of our economy and our national security if we do not take Climate Change seriously, and do it NOW. Here in rural Southern California the fire danger is increasing every year: Wildfire season is now almost all year long. We are having an on-going multi-year drought, and the water level in pour well is dangerously low. Climate Change is very real to me and my family, and I cannot believe that the banks are still able to invest in the expansion of the industry that is threatening our future. If there is a definition of risk, this is it. The science is clear on this issue, and if we do not manage this risk, we are essentially locking in the emissions that will doom our economic future.

342. Kathryn Dorn
Tempe, AZ 85284

I am so glad that you've proposed strong climate-change-mitigating guidance for banks, and hope that you do whatever you can to force banks to actually minimize their carbon footprints! By continuing to invest in and otherwise enable businesses that endanger us all (via climate-change-exacerbating practices like deforestation and fossil-fuel extraction and combustion), far too many banks are bizarrely undercutting their own financial futures by raising the odds that their customers will die horribly in climate-change-induced disasters. (Honestly, I care more about the latter consequence of climate change than about the fate of any bank, but I'd be very happy to see banks finally realize that zeroing their carbon footprints will ultimately improve their future, too.) Please protect banks from themselves (and, more importantly, protect all of life on Earth from banks' ill-considered investments) by telling banks to truly consider and minimize their carbon footprints! Thank you!

343. Ann Rothschild
Sacramento, CA 95819

I am so glad to see that someone is finally holding banks accountable for bankrolling fossil fuels. Please think of the next

I applaud the Biden Administration for tackling this important, unmet need. We must "follow the money" to ensure true accountability to climate commitments, risk management, and good governance -- and ultimately, to survive climate change.

346. Sherry Hayden

I appreciate your thoughtful approach to this problem, and support your ground-breaking work on requiring the banking industry to be accountable. Your plan is crucial to their survival, even though they likely don't realize it yet. Thanks for taking a firm stand and speaking out.

347. Margaret Cofresi

I believe Climate Change is our country's most pressing problem. Please do everything you can to mitigate it as much as possible.

352. Leslie Gelman

Falls Church, VA 22043

I believe climate change is the existential crisis of our time. The more we delay reducing harmful emissions, the more costly it will be to mitigate the damage. Stopping/reducing investment in companies producing emissions/fossil fuels is vital to reducing/stopping carbon/methane emissions. Money is the chief incentive to produce the fossil fuels and other harmful emissions products/services. Banks and financial firms have the power to reduce/stop the money flow. Please help save the planet!

353. Jason Price

Santa Clarita, CA 91390

I believe in leading by example, and so three years ago I removed companies that produce or traffic fossil fuels from my 401K and IRA investment portfolios. The banking industry should do the same, so that collectively we have a positive impact on climate change.

354. Carol Fordonski

I believe that climate change is the most critical risk facing us!

355. Tracy Lyman

I believe that combating climate change is so important that all sectors of the economy must aggressively participate. Please support this initiative now!

356. Joseph Jenkins

Holly Springs, NC 27540

I definitely support bank regulators efforts at establishing risk guidelines for evaluating climate and environmental impacts on bank investments. The old theme that all profits are the banks and all risks will belong to the taxpayer should be a thing of the past. Definite caps should be placed as to individual project investments so that multiple total project failures or set backs will not put the bank in need of government assistance.

357. Susan Schulman

Hinesburg, VT 5461

I definitely support this. We need to do everything possible to mitigate climate change so that our children and grandchildren have a world to live in.

I don't want our climate to morph into a public enemy.

359. Patricia Taylor

I don't like banks to begin with. Credit unions are far fairer and more reliable. But to learn that banks are so avid to rake in as much money as they can that they are willing to sacrifice our planet, our liveability, our lives to their profit----disgusting.

360. Peter Lockwood

I don't want my bank funding fossil fuel companies, rainforest destruction, pipelines, and climate chaos.

361. Brenda Campbell

I fear for the futures of everyone's children and grandchildren due to crucial climate change issues.

363. J.J Smith

I find it bizarre that we actually have to have this conversation. What part of the world will not be habitable if we don't do everything we can, starting now. don't you understand? Your business tanks when the economy tanks which is coming up in our near future.

367. Barbara Stout
Blue Island, IL 60406
I fully support new guidelines for, and regulations on, banks regarding investments they make in fossil fuels which are largely driving climate change. The documentaries on climate change are indisputably showing what fossil fuels are doing to our earth. I have been a regular customer at CHASE bank and appreciate the service it provides. However I strongly believe it must take a leadership role in managing climate-related risks. Thus, I fully support new guidelines asking banks to take climate risk seriously. 374. Kate Ellison

I have been waiting for businesses and corporations to take some responsibility for factoring in the damage humans are doing to the air and water we all share and need for our very survival. I've waited for decades, and I am so grateful that someone is finally doing something positive, now that "climate change" has really become a "climate crisis"!

375. Patricia Kinney
Palo Alto, CA 94303

I have been working on getting institutions to divest from fossil fuels for a long while. Portfolios that have eliminated or reduced fossil fuel holdings have done better than before, because, with climate change, the future for fossil fuel companies is risky. Reducing your investments in fossil fuels will help stop climate change and protect the fiduciary interests of your customers and investors.

376. Lynn Artz

I have divested all of my retirement & investment assets from fossil fuels. I think all banks should be required to do so as well.

378. Heather Howell

I live in a beautiful area on the Gulf Coast of Florida where people should all be concerned about the climate crisis. Yet even here, we struggle to impress adults with the importance of the fight. The young people understand but we can't wait until they are old enough to vote to take action.

389. Diane Ryerson

Arcata, CA 95521

I live near Humboldt Bay, California where the land is subsiding, leading to the fastest rate of Sea Level Rise along the Pacific coast. In the near future this will threaten agricultural lands because of flooding and emerging ground water, U.S. Hwy 101 with flooding especially during King Tides [this is the major north south connection along the coast from San Francisco Bay north to the Oregon border], loss of infrastructure connections and waste water treatment plants. These are just some of the climate risks in my neighborhood. Banks need to divest from fossil fuels, and invest in solar microgrid development, rooftop solar, energy storage development and wind development which will help alleviate climate risks.

good step in the right direction! Thank you.

391. Russ Hopler

Fairfax, VA 22033

I pay close attention to environmental governance in my investment choices and would value choosing my banks accordingly.
Ideally all banks would make earth friendly investments, but consumers need awareness of how well they are performing in this regard.

392. Jan Cecil

Berkeley, CA 94705

I quit Citi credit card and will do no transactions with Wells for climate reason.
It's greedy, cowardly, and cruel to choose obscene profits and fear of change over saving our people, wildlife, waters and future. It should become a criminal offense.

393. John Webster

Dublin, OH 43017

I realize how difficult it is to push big banks, but with NASA, NOAA, WMO, NAS... all saying how serious climate change is there is not much choice anymore. We in the activist community will continue to push the fossil fuel financiers, and I hope those in the national government will do the same.
You have regulatory power, which we do not.

394. Esta Modian

Seattle, WA 98115

I sincerely hope you heed these requests and accept the responsibility granted through your enormous powers. You can choose to be a driving force in the efforts to work to invest in renewable energy sources that will empower our economy and communities. We urge you to be bold and lead the way toward investments that will benefit the future of our country and the world. Thank you.

395. Eryn Espiritu

I strongly support holding banking accountable for terrorizing my children with climate destruction.

396. Peter Followill

Tucker, GA 30084

I strongly support the guidance requiring banks to consider climate-related threats in their governance, planning, and risk management.

397. Fran Glass

Saint Louis, MO 63126

I strongly support the new guidelines telling banks to take climate risk seriously.

398. Loraine Zagula

Tucson, AZ 85719

I support new guidelines telling banks to take climate risk seriously.

Big banks have the power to make critical change for our future & the future of our children.

399. Cat Ransom

Cottonwood, AZ 86326

I support requiring banks for factor in climate-related threats. If money talks, people will listen. So if banks say that climate must be factored in, climate will become a factor very quickly.

400. Gina Durante

Davis, CA 95616

I support the new guidance requiring banks to include climate-related threats into their governance, planning, and risk management. When banks make short-term profits at the expense of societal well-being longer term, society loses. Please approve this guidance.

401. Cynthia Hanson

Mountain View, CA 94043

I support the new guidelines requiring banks to take climate risk seriously.

402. Roxanne Scheidt

Breinigsville, PA 18031

I support the OCC's effort to reign in the big banks and force them to live up to their public relations pronouncements mitigating climate change. They need to put their money where their mouth is a STOP investing in fossil fuel companies! Thanks for your actions!

403. Dean Arrighi

San Luis Obispo, CA 93401

I support this 100%

404. Erin Hollingsworth

Telluride, CO 81435

I think climate change puts our environment and our ways of life at risk, and science tells us that fossil fuels are a huge contributing factor to climate change. I support new guidelines that tell banks to take climate change, and how they contribute to it, seriously.

405. Louise Calabro

Bayside, NY 11360

I think you should support this program in 2024.

406. Rhonda Neverz

Largo, FL 33770

I totally support new guidance to tell the big banks to change their investments that are destroying this earth & it's climate.

407. Tamara Rakow

Rosemount, MN 55068

I urge you to please take climate challenge seriously and prove it by your actions, not just words that you do care.

408. Matt Lammers

Sautee, GA 30571

I use banks and I know how important they are BUT they can also contribute to or destroy life on our home, Earth. Act responsibly in all your endeavors on behalf of the money entrusted to (and for) you. We all need to live and cannot do so without a healthy environment.

409. Lori Lorenzo

Sacramento, CA 95819

I want a world where my grandchildren can live safely and productively without the dangers and difficulties that unmitigated climate change will pose.

410. Irene Hilgers

I want my grandkids & great grandchildren to be able to live on this earth when I am gone. Stop funding polluters & start funding innovators.

412. Kathy Ryan

Thornton, CO 80241

I want my investments to better the planet, not continue to destroy it.

413. Hap Enzi

Walla Walla, WA 99362

I want to leave our children a world with a climate in which they can live comfortably. Every person and every business on this planet needs to work to make this happen. The OCC's new guidelines definitely are needed.

414. Kate Reeve

Show Low, AZ 85901

I was alarmed to learn that my bank, Chase, is one of the banks that continues to support fossil fuels. If Chase and other big banks do not follow new guidelines, and common sense, then I will be withdrawing my account and moving to a local credit union.

415. Joseph Blanda

Peninsula, OH 44264

I will be Canceling my credit card and pulling my money away from any bank that supports fossil fuel.

416. Dagmar Fabian

Bellingham, WA 98225

I will not use a CITI card anymore because they still lend to coal, oil and tar sands.

417. Cynthia Kimball

Sparks, NV 89436

I wish there wasn't a need for your agency to push the banks to do the right thing. But now that a climate crisis has turned into an emergency, I don't see that they will act on their own to protect the future of our planet.

418. Anya Davis

Berkeley, CA 94708

I work in commercial real estate finance and I can tell you that the biggest risk to our investments in real estate is natural disaster caused by climate change; second biggest risk is catastrophic social collapse, also caused by climate change. We must take climate change seriously and do everything possible to turn it around right now.

I would like everyone in the world to take Climate Crisis seriously and do everything each person can do to help save our environment. That includes all industries and banking is no exception. Banks need to be required to invest greatly in renewable energy businesses and not fossil fuels any longer. Thank you for your support!

422. Reina Snyder
West Palm Beach, FL 33411
If banks want to prosper in the long term, investing in true green industries and businesses is only commonsense.
Continuing to invest in fossil fuels is just forfeiting the future for all of us. We must correct things now. Thanks.

423. Rick Downey
Boulder Creek, CA 95006
If not for big banks financing fossil fuel development, the major energy companies would have already converted to renewables. Renewable energy is already cheaper and faster to obtain than fossil fuel projects, so get with the program and get with the public and get with the future!

424. Maxine Kopel
Blue Ash, OH 45242
If not now, when? If business doesn't take climate change seriously, then what happens to the rest of us? will we be forced to suffer the consequences so banks can take in profits?

Menifee, CA 92586
If not you then who?

426. Ellen Rozek
Saint Paul, MN 55105
If the last few years have proven anything, it's that big banks can't be trusted to back up their good climate policy talk with meaningful action. The OCC's recommendations are reasonable, fair, and a huge step in the right direction toward forcing the kind of changes banks haven't made on their own. They cannot and should not be allowed to continue to invest in fossil fuel projects that exacerbate the climate crisis without being required to consider the climate-related risks they are taking in the process.

427. Sheri Delaine
Poughquag, NY 12570
If those making financial decisions for banks had any real sense, they would be investing in the future, and that means sustainable energy sources! It's the ONLY way we can go and the sooner, the better!

434. Marj Waite

East Hartford, CT 6118

If you can't find it in yourself to care about the others that are affected by climate change do remember that your family and friends, despite the money and connections you may all have, will also be affected. This isn't something that only hurts the lower classes, it also hurts you and yours. It may take more time for you to feel it, but you will eventually have to deal with it like the rest of the masses.

435. Jane Steisel

Waterbury, CT 6705

If you care about the future for your families, you'll start caring and actually on climate change. Humans' lives and the fate of this earth, including all creatures from the largest to the smallest in every part of this earth depend on you, the government and the behavior and action of all individuals. It's up to the leaders and lawmakers and those who 'run' this earth to make the initial changes and educate people on how to try to fix this planet before it's too late.

I'm a (retired) professional economist. I live in WV - coal country; fossil-fuel country. And I'm a Son of Big Oil. My late father was an Exxon Lifer, who spent the mid-60's through the mid-80's working out of World HQ. He had been trained as a scientist, and served as a meteorologist in the Army Air Force during WWII. He knew all about climate change back before others began talking about it. And he always told me, after he retired, that we'd all be "astonished" (his word) at the alternative non-fossil-fuel energy technologies that would roll out once the price per gallon of gas at the pump got above and stayed there.
He was, and I am, deeply concerned about today's and tomorrow's natural world, and the legacy we are leaving our - and your - descendants. Please do the right thing for our country, and for the long run. Don't let banks stop progress on climate change issues by bankrolling fossil fuel projects. They are on the wrong side of history. And my dad knew it decades ago.

Investing in monetary profit before investing in a place capable of spending money on is a poor investment. Profit at the expense of welfare of everyone involved is money invested in strife. It is absolutely essential that banks stop putting our entire civilization at risk by funding fossil fuel projects. Every part of our economy will suffer if we trigger climate disasters like we've been seeing all last year: wildfires, tornadoes, flooding, hurricanes... Our entire coastline with beachfront properties is at risk from storm surges and sea level rise. All that real estate becomes worthless. What will we do about that? Let's prevent it, slow it down, by stopping making it worse.

It is downright delusional for banks to ignore the threats of increasing climate change in their planning and risk management. We know that climate change is real, it's happening now, and it's very likely to get worse. Help protect our world and the economy by acting now!

473. Margareta Knauff

It is easy to prioritize short term gains over long term goals. In this case, with our children's and grandchildren's futures on the line, we need to prioritized the long term goals. There may be a short term loss, but it is for an overall long term gain.

474. Carol Elliott

It is essential to factor in the risks of destroying the stability of Earth's climate into banking decisions. We are already seeing insurance companies raising premiums or denying coverage due to actual or potential losses due to natural disasters or climate risk. Banks should deprive financial backing to fossil fuel related enterprises which contribute to the release of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere, especially methane.

475. Norman Mellin
Kalispell, MT 59901

It is everyone's responsibility to impede climate change and the destruction of our planet as we know it. Water, food, wildlife, and humans are in critical danger from global warming. That is a fact established by world renowned scientists.

476. Lesley Hunt

491. Jennifer Dublino
Boca Raton, FL 33428

It is time to force the enablers of catastrophic climate change to do things differently, for the good of the planet and the people. When there are no consequences to funding the activities that are killing our planet, short-sighted corporations that are only concerned about their quarterly profits will continue pouring money into fossil fuel companies. Deprived of funding, these companies will have a compelling incentive to pivot and invest in sustainable energy sources. Without this pressure, they will milk every last dollar from this harmful and dangerous business.

492. Rebecca Erickson
Ashland, MO 65010

It is time to leave last century's energy under ground. Stop funding new fossil

It is very clear from what is going on with the weather (such as hurricanes, tornado, typhoons, polar melting, draughts, drastic changes in regional snow falls and rains) is drastic, primarily caused by fossil-fuel burning. It is also very clear from very authentic scientific studies that it is headed for tragic consequences if we don't start replacing the fossil fuels with renewable energy sources starting right now. Therefore, I most sincerely request you to do your best to take care of this crisis. Thanks for listening.

It's difficult to set a new perspective, but necessary.
Essentially, this planet Earth is warming -- meaning all inhabitants need to be aware of how their actions keep warming things up. Which includes, what banks we actually use!
So please, keep your focus on this as we evolve together. Especially if we have any Grandchildren to think of!!

526. Kurt Harvey

Looked at strictly from a financial perspective, annual damages in the US caused by or made much worse by climate change amount to probably billions of dollars. This includes damages from droughts, floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, wildfires, crop failure, damage to structures, fields and rangeland, and scarcity of food resulting in higher food prices. None of this is currently taken into consideration when decisions are made. We cannot afford to go on this way.

My husband and I have two wonderful daughters, now more than ever I fear for their health and safety as they grow up and start to have families of their own. I am a commercial real estate developer and have recently completed a LEED certified building for one of my tenants. I have also just completed installing solar panels on another building I own. We need to change the way we do things now!! I'm trying to do my part, but I am also counting on my government and Banks /Financial business to step up and shift to a healthier more sustainable track NOW! Our current crisis is giving us a choice - do we try to get back to ?normal? or choose a better path. Our kids are counting on us to make the right choices today, so they even have a future tomorrow. Big banks have a roll in this work please hold them accountable.

My wife and I were dismayed to learn that Bank of America has invested more than $200 billion in fossil fuel companies since signing the Paris Accords.
(<https://www.fossilbanks.org/fossil-banks>)
We had both been BoA customers for years, but we've removed our funds from BoA and joined a local credit union. But I think we're not representative of most customers who are unaware of the damage their banks are doing by investing heavily in fossil fuels. Market based solutions aren't enough - financial regulators need to step in and make sure that the banks don't focus on short term profits while damaging our climate for generations to come.

573. Ann Payne

Nothing can be done without money, BIG money. Bank's, with their ability to provide loans to businesses with goals that promote climate and environmental concerns, have an important role to play in helping us move forward by replacing old systems of transportation and energy with new innovations. New jobs opportunities will replace those lost by energy inefficient sources. And will help save our planet for future generations. Banks must reevaluate their emphasis on oil and gas and move into the future if they want to continue - as a species.

Part of managing climate risk is not funding projects in areas prone to severe weather, such as flooding or wildfires. I've seen too many projects in low-lying coastal areas where flooding is guaranteed as sea level rises and storms worsen. If banks refuse to finance such projects, the developers will have to go to more appropriate areas.

Please immediately investigate what is happening north of the Arctic circle regarding the rapidly melting permafrost.
We are observing an impressive release of carbon loads. In addition to the sudden appearance of new lakes, they are bubbling with percolating methane gas as it is being released into the atmosphere. This methane is emanating from 100+ feet below the permafrost by way of chimney structures beneath the lakes. The methane is thirty times more potent than the carbon.
It remains strong for thirteen years in the atmosphere. The data of the ongoing releases from these entities has not yet been configured into assessing the timetable of global warming, of the impacts of climate change? and weird weather patterns. The process of melting will be an ever increasing one on no uncertain terms.
The redistribution of populations across the globe will be significant. We must work together swiftly to curtail man made carbon loads.

Thank you.

Please take a bold step in regulating big bank investments in projects that continue to drive the global climate crisis. These projects can't exist without bank investments. We all need to do everything we can do to slow down the climate catastrophe that is occurring right now. Business as usual is no longer possible, and banks need strong regulations to stop investing in fossil fuel projects that are decimating the future for all of us. Climate change is causing higher sea levels, more droughts which lead to more wildfires, animal and bird and pollinator extinction which will impact our food supplies. Banks are not above the reality of global climate change. And they need to be held accountable when they are contributing to this crisis.

Sincerely,
Evan Elias

Reducing climate risk means:
1. Offering incentives (such as lower loan rates) for those properties or projects that have long-term positive effects for nature (an environmental component)
2. Mandating flood insurance, higher loan rates, or fees for those who a) build real estate on risky coastal property or b) build projects with highly probable environmental contamination
3. Making low- and middle-income property projects a priority... because there are negative environmental effects when people become homeless

Stop investing in fossil fuel! The only way the world will end its dependence on fossil fuels is if banks take the lead, with your massive financial influence, and instead invest in clean energy alternatives like geothermal, wind and solar power with micro grids, conservation agriculture and managed grazing, coastal wetland and forest restoration/protections, and electrified transport (so much more effective to invest in!!), to name a few. If your priorities don't change soon, extreme weather events will devastate us ALL.

Taking a holistic view of banking, including looking at the cascading effects of one's investments, not just at profits at any price, would mean looking at the long term effects on the physical environment, the atmosphere, human health, and overall sustainability of the planet. We can not allow the banks to continue "silo thinking"- i.e.- only looking at one, immediate result of investing.

766. Charles Huber

Westminster, MD 21157

Talk is cheap and can easily be a smokescreen for inaction on dealing with activities relating to climate change. Our financial institutions must take climate change seriously and only make investments that will reduce or eliminate the damaging and costly effects of climate change.

767. William Snyder

Thank you for adding climate to banking policy and regulation. The goal to reach zero emissions by 2050 requires investment strategies that disavow damage to our planet. The financial sector as a whole ought to have been included, but starting with the role of banks as primary capital investors is a welcome beginning

772. Dianna Kessler

Cornville, AZ 86325

Thank you for having the courage to take up the issue of climate change regarding banking investments Comptroller Hsu. It is way past time that the banks back the words they promise regarding taking care of our fragile climate with actions. They say they take climate change seriously, but their actions often show otherwise-- especially when it comes to invest in fossil fuels. We need the banks to their actions and the climate seriously. because it puts all of at risk.

Thank you for your attention to my message.

One enormous risk that banks are taking in fossil fuel-related investments is that the time will come in the not-too-distant future when we will have to forbid the extraction of these fuels. How do the banks expect to be paid back when that happens?

Thanks for starting this conversation. As an investor, I have moved most of my assets to renewable energy. Please do all you can to get more folks to change and for the banks to follow along also.

779. Cynthia Cannon

Tacoma, WA 98422

That banks give lip service to being proactive on climate change, but continue to invest without climate risk being part of the decision-making process is short-sighted. And, it's likely to persist unless regulators require banks to act in line with their talk and the climate risk that manifests now and, going along this same trajectory, will only worsen.

780. Erin Ferrara

Essex Junction, VT 5452

The amount of positive change that individual people can make against climate change is nothing compared to what banks can do. As a planet, we need banks and corporations to start taking climate change seriously. Our lives depend on it.

781. Helen Howard

Fairbanks, AK 99709

The Arctic and Antarctic are warming and creating a change in the climate in the rest of the world, which expects sea ice to cool off the planet. This is happening faster than anticipated and is like the fire under a pot that you put a lobster in. Incidentally, lobsters and crabs and other ocean dwellers are dying from the warmer waters.... etc. etc. a perfect feedback loop.

782. Camille Curran

Placerville, CA 95667

The availability of funding has dramatic impact on the air we breathe and the Earth's health. Declining financing for projects which contribute to the climate change dynamic has significant impact. Your stewardship of this mechanism is vital to our survival. Mitigation of climate risks by banks is an essential component.

783. Elliot Bronwein

The banks must do their part to address the Climate Crisis, and refrain from doing business with companies that promote fossil fuels.

784. Janet Wagner

The climate crisis is a clear threat to our future-- our environment, agriculture, economy, and national security. We must address it decisively, and "Business As Usual" is an unacceptable response. And long-time financiers of the fossil fuel economy, banks must now step up and change their past practices. No more investment in coal or diesel fuel production or combustion!

793. Linda Murphy
Hyattsville, MD 20782

The climate crisis is an emergency. The tundra is melting, and fossilized methane is being released all around the arctic. The Earth's life forms are in imminent danger of extinction much sooner than had been predicted. Immediate action must be taken to address this crisis by people at all levels, especially those who can make a significant difference.

794. David Lindorff

803. James Richman

The customers of the banks, who deposit their money in them, have no idea, usually, of what the banks use their money for, what companies or corporations the banks are funding. More citizens need to challenge banks to stop using their money, their deposits, and the interest earned by the banks from the loans made by the banks from those citizens' deposits, for loans to entities that are not working towards reducing carbon emissions.

The effects of climate change are apparent and reveal violent damage to the planet with violent hurricanes and tornados, devastating droughts, floods and dramatic sea level rises causing millions to be displaced. Banks should not be financing fossil projects that will continue to harm the environment and lead to dramatic climate change that permanently damaged the earth.

807. Dottie Bell
Franklinton, NC 27525

The entire planet is suffering from climate change. We all need to take this issue into account in everything we do. I strongly urge all banks to stop supporting risky fossil fuel investments. We (the whole planet) needs to transition to clean energy. Fossil fuel projects are NOT clean energy. Funding these projects must stop NOW.

808. Maurice Hawthorne
Wilburton, OK 74578

The environment is of utmost concern. The survival of a number of species is at risk. Fossil fuel usage is damaging the atmosphere and the further search for their additional sources is damaging the surface environment and sensitive waterways critical to survival of many species. Loans that continue environmental degradation by enabling corporations to destroy habitat and disrupt breeding cycles of wildlife by continuing in reckless disregard of the consequences is irresponsible.

809. Kathryn Wilham
Suquamish, WA 98392

The fact that banks are claiming to be taking climate change seriously while they continue to invest billions into fossil fuel companies terrifies me. These continuing investments when we know climate change is upon us will be a big factor in the horrible world we are leaving for my three grandchildren and all of the next generations, which will be the last generations of humans if we don't act now. Read the science.

Sanford, FL 32771

The last few years alone have shown us abundant proof that climate change is a real and imminent threat, not only to our country but to all life on our planet as well. We have allowed the fossil fuel industry to delay action against this threat for far too long, all in their pursuit to desperately bleed every penny from our lands and oceans.

If our banks finally began investing those funds in clean energy solutions it would not only help combat the devastating effects of climate change, it would also bring far greater returns than the dying fossil fuel industry could ever hope to provide. Many of our foreign competitors have already begun making these investments in clean and renewable energy. Every passing day that our country refuses to follow their lead, we risk losing out on the immense economic benefits that clean, renewable energy would provide.

820. Beth Deaton

Bishop, CA 93514

The last thing we need is new fossil fuel extraction projects. It will take a combination of regulation and lack of financing to cut these developments off at the knees. Please have the courage to make this move for all our futures.

821. Karen Loeser

Mercer Island, WA 98040

The life of our planet and all its inhabitants are more important than your bottom line. DO THE RIGHT THING FOR ALL !!!

822. Penny Moulis

Virginia Beach, VA 23451

The lives of my grandchildren are at risk! Please reduce climate risks any way you can!

823. Marvis Phillips

San Francisco, CA 94102

The longer we wait from starting to take then climate change disaster serious, the harder it will be to end it, and the faster the human race and all life as we know it will come to an end on this our only home! We have a very small window still open to stop our destruction, but that window time is closing rapidly, and the banks are closing it the fastest! It is time to stop, destroying our only home!

824. Crystal Brunelli

Raymond, NH 3077

The long-term climate effects of current projects will affect costs and profits in the future, so they must be taken into consideration now.

825. Susan Wulff

Skaneateles, NY 13152

The new guidance will protect our communities and the banks themselves!

826. Rufus Morison, PhD

Bristol, TN 37620

The OCC must require banks to plan for the long-term impacts of climate change instead of only focusing on short-term profits. It also tells banks that they cannot greenwash: if they announce climate goals, like net zero by 2035, they need to follow through. They won't be able to continue business as usual.

This is a major opportunity the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency to begin fulfilling their mandates to protect our economy from climate-related risks and ensure Wall Street giants are doing their part too. We must show our support for this new guidance from the OCC, and encourage the agency to use the full extent of its authority to prevent a climate-fueled economic crash and phase out fossil fuel based energy and its systems.

827. Janet Boys

Denver, CO 80221

The only way to mitigate climate change is to stop investing in bad environmental practices - so the fossil fuel business and agribusiness are two big culprits.

828. Jeff Cody

Chicago, IL 60626

The permafrost is thawing and methane is being released into the atmosphere. If the methane hydrate on the ocean floor melts it's game over. What good will your profit be then? Only a mad man or a fool kills the goose that lays the golden egg.

829. Ruth Linn

Louisville, KY 40291

The public does support banks' new guidance and as a person involved in banking I do too. The old adage of "putting your money where your mouth is" applies!

Banks can make a HUGE difference in climate change. I appreciate your attention to this issue.

830. Rachel Pratt
Oak View, CA 93022

The ramifications of climate change are horrendous. Banks must not allow our money to be used to help destroy our, and all life on the planet, future. Divest!

831. David Bishton

The science is clear: if there is not immediate and ongoing remediation to improve the health of our planet, we are facing a bleak future.

833. Kathleen Tolliver
New Haven, CT 6513

The science warns us that climate change, climate disaster is real, is not linear, but is exponential. We see the obvious changes, e.g. storms, fires, changes in air, temperature that are spectacular. But also are the signs of change, seemingly pleasant, fortuitous, that may be a harbinger of deeper problems ahead. For example:
Botswana has enjoyed wonderful, bountiful rains this season. But it's concerning that what may follow this rain windfall may, - indeed be a harbinger of crop rots to follow.
There is a balance of nature, systems are integrated. Climate disaster is not only to affect some people in some place, but is a problem to concern me. Respectfully submitted, K. Tolliver

The problem will sooner or later affect all.
Sooner is clearly already here for some & also for some many. We are being shown this to be true. The idea "there's still time" - -to make money for a few more decades is just wrong. Civilizations have'nt faced this disaster before , but it is real. Respectfully

834. Terry Thorkildson
Gainesville, FL 32601

The survival of the human race is at stake.
WE SHOULD HAVE ABANDONED FOSSIL FUELS 20 YEARS AGO to stem the tide of climate change. Now it's too late to PREVENT climate change; we can only minimize and shorten it. But WE HAVE TO ACT NOW - AND DRASTICALLY - to achieve even this minimalist goal. IF WE DO NOT, THE CLIMATE CHANGE TO COME WILL MAKE THE IMPACT OF THE COVID-19 SEEM LIKE A HAPPY FAMILY PICNIC.

Thirty years ago a number of insurance companies noticed that damage claims due to increasingly heavy storms were rising.
Some of them concluded, even then, that climate change is real and began adjusting their rates accordingly. Since then, many insurance companies have continued to increase rates and in some cases have abandoned insurance markets because of this problem. If insurance companies recognize the danger to health and safety

due to climate change, so should banks.

874. Henry Kahn
Atlanta, GA 30306
This concerned citizen, physician, and public-health researcher is repeatedly disappointed that the major extractors of fossil fuels are uninterested in responding to our climate emergency. They're very short-sighted. However, they might respond if their future investments were not funded by capital provided by our major banks. This is why your initiatives are so important.

875. Jeffrey Blackman

This has to stop, these banks need to start being responsible, like right now. We are heading towards the point of no return within the next 10 years. If these banks continue to do what they are currently doing, we should be able to shut them down and liquidate them. Then use the money for the prevention of climate change, and its consequences.

877. Mary Provost

This is about greed. What good is money if the planet can no longer sustain life because of corporate greed.

887. Dianne Haag

San Diego, CA 92102

This is about money! Please show big banks that the we are watching. With the pandemic Americans have had more time to watch the weather and remember how it was 5 years ago or ten years ago. We ALL have to change the way we do things and big money is NO different. Thank you for the work you do!

888. Sanford Wilder

Grafton, IL 62037

This is absolutely vital! It must happen immediately!

889. Helen Brennan

Seattle, WA 98126

This is all about more money for the banks. They are sugar coating themselves. We can see what they say one thing - continue doing the same thing.!!

890. Lana Touchstone

This planet has finite resources, think about this! The fossil fuels conglomerates are decimating this planet with unregulated extraction processes, our climate is suffering as a result. With that, the impact to all living things, humans, animals, sea life, plant life, is only worsening and will continue without interruption. Stop the fossil fuel subsidies now, before it's too late! Encourage alternative options for renewables, and climate and environmental energy friendly possibilities. Our one and only planet depends on it!

To have any hope of stemming the worsening climate crisis, we need banks to stop pouring money into fossil fuels. So far, they're doing little or nothing. Any guidance you can provide to help move them in the right direction would be welcome and deeply appreciated. Your grandchildren will thank you!

918. Robert Wells
Roswell, NM 88201

To lower the rate of climate change, all of us should be doing all we can to minimize the release of CO2 and methane into the atmosphere. You and your bank can limit the funding of petroleum exploration and development. Please do that.

919. Cheryl Holz

Aurora, IL 60504

920. Tom Fray

To recklessly compromise the health of our planet is not only insane, it is blasphemy!

921. Rosalba Cofer
Galt, CA 95632

To reiterate, it is in the best interest of both the public and banks themselves to act now to minimize climate risk. The OCC must use the full extent of its authority to issue strong final guidance to banks on climate risk, continue to protect against unsafe and unsound bank practices, and require remedies from banks where appropriate.

922. Susan Blain
San Diego, CA 92104

Transparency is critical. Information about big banks' impact on climate should be released to the public regularly.

923. Christopher Hamilton

Two years ago I read "The Uninhabitable Earth" by David Wallace-Wells. Frightening prospects for humans if we continue with our heads stuck in the sand. Banks can play a giant role in trying to help the world step back from the precipice.

924. Susan O'Rourke
Saint Petersburg, FL 33710

Understandably, banks need to make money in order to function and we are not arguing that fact. However, there are many nontoxic ways to increase their holdings. But for banks we all at one time or another use or maybe on a regular basis have checking and savings accounts or need a home or an auto loan we turn to our banks but we aren't turning to them to increase the horrors of wildfires, hurricanes, tornadoes, winter storms of increasing ferociousness and of course flooding. Every state goes thru its own weather worries but NEVER have so many lost lives and/or their homes, at times their ENTIRE COMMUNITIES but due to climate change this will not only continue it will become much worse and the banks must take some responsibility for that. They continually agree to do better and when we are quiet for a while they sneak right under our radar and once again bankroll the "dirty" businesses that are leading the way to killing us or ending life as we know it. THEY MUST STOP DESTROYING!!

fracking, coal and nuclear power. Thanks!

943. Kathleen Yohn
Germantown, OH 45327
We are fast approaching the tipping point where we will be unable to stem the tide of climate change. While we all bear responsibility for changing our behavior in ways that lessen our carbon footprint, it is well documented that the individual can do little to address climate change, and that large corporations and those who invest in them bear the primary responsibility for making major changes to business as usual so that we might begin to lessen the impact of climate change. Continuing to invest in fossil fuel producers is irresponsible. Investments in the development of Green technology and producers is our future. I want to see socially responsible investing become the norm in the hope that it might help save our planet for my grandchildren.

944. RoseMarie Meservey

We are no longer in the coal/oil age; if we do not act fast, we may reach a tipping point at which the bellows is blowing the fire, and climate may collapse. We face catastrophic disasters from the climate emergency. This includes the horrible DECEMBER wildfire my community suffered. This never happened before the climate crisis.
We MUST have bold action NOW!!!

960. Felix Mbuga

Milpitas, CA 95035

We have a moral responsibility to our children and our grandchildren to not leave them a planet in worse condition than we received it that is devastated by climate pollution.

961. John Byrne

Oakton, VA 22124

We have got to stop Climate Change

962. Denise Marlowe

Inver Grove Heights, MN 55076

We have little time to prevent catastrophic climate crises.

963. Ronald Fuller

Ithaca, NY 14850

We have no time left to wait for dramatic change if we are to save the earth itself from destruction for humans. NO fossil fuels. Solar energy. Stop the waste that is going to destroy us.

964. Isobel Duncan

La Grange, IL 60640

We have no time left to wait. This a demand and a necessity. I have gone to several protest at banks drawing the connection between pipelines and banks. I do this because I want places people have to put their money to be investing in people not investing in murder of people and our planet.

965. Janet Engh

Staten Island, NY 10314

We have only One Mother Earth!

966. Joy Cook

Jekyll Island, GA 31527

We have to curb climate change before it is too late

967. Kelly Eaves

Orlando, FL 32817

We have to make changes now before it's too late.

968. Alicia Lundell

Lathrup Village, MI 48076

We just installed solar panels on our rooftop and it cost us a lot of money! However, we are more concerned with the devastating effects of climate change than trying to hoard every penny for ourselves. We care about our environment and all the people and wildlife. I wish others who are monetarily capable would do the same. Unfortunately, GREED gets in the way. What will it take? Will you have to perish in natural disasters before you see the light? Of course at that point it wouldn't be daylight that you see.

969. Cynthia Mazurek

Spring Lake, MI 49456

We know effects of fossil fuels on our environment. The big banks use my money and as such need to be better stewards of what that money supports. The guidance of the OCC is a needed step, thank you!

970. Helen Shaskan

New York, NY 10022

We must all work to reverse climate change, starting with large banks funding much of what's killing us. Please put this at the top of your 'to do' list.

971. Beverly Long

Saint Louis, MO 63118

We MUST balance ecology with economics. Please invest with "Green" energy and rebuilding the earth's eco- systems. Thank you.

972. Linda Huggins, Trustee

Lansing, KS 66043

We must do everything possible to protect the earth and combat the climate crisis. Act now! Voters and investors are watching. We all must act for the future of our children and address the climate crisis now.

973. Charlie O'Reilly

Nixa, MO 65714

We MUST do everything possible to stop global warming and climate change, not just for us but also for future generations.

974. Dianne Pingitore

Hamilton, NJ 8610

We must do everything that we can to mitigate climate change risks.

975. Christy Park

Gloucester, MA 1930

We must end support of fossil fuels. Otherwise we are helping the end of life on earth

976. Roger Athey

Scottsdale, AZ 85254

We must focus development funds and efforts on sustainable solutions to our energy needs, not on unhealthy, life threatening fossil fuels.

977. Beverley Rannow

Holland, MI 49423

We must get serious about climate change to protect the planet we live on and the future generations who need to live here.

978. Sandra Ciske

Seattle, WA 98116

We must hold banks accountable for their climate commitments now. Our planet cannot wait.

979. Laurel Harris

Rutherford, CA 94573

We must not invest any more in Fossil Fuels, now we must turn the tide to safe renewable energy and save Our Planet Earth!

Humanity and all life on Earth depend on our being able to slow and then reverse The Global Climate Crisis!!!

980. Kristen Manies

Sunnyvale, CA 94086

We must provide regulation and incentives for companies, such as banks, to include climate change in their planning and investment strategies. Please help ensure a better future for all.

981. Thomas Proett

Valley Springs, CA 95252

We must pursue every path to fossil fuel reduction.

982. William Looney

Silverdale, WA 98383

We MUST Put Our $$$$ where OUR Earth Is !!!

983. Jeannette Lovetri

New York, NY 10025

We must put the health of the earth before profits. You will not be able to run the bank if the planet is too poisoned to sustain life. You MUST support all measures to make the climate the paramount issue of your corporation and of all financial institutions and of any investments you make. This is very urgent and it is what most people want. Please do what is best for the earth.

984. Mark Coryell

Phoenix, AZ 85045

We must stop funding projects that in the long run will kill us all.

985. D Orellana

Reynoldsburg, OH 43068

We must take climate change seriously!

986. Kathleen Schwery

Plattsmouth, NE 68048

We must try to slow the threat of climate change immediately. If we wait too long it will be impossible to stop this life-altering event. The military has long recognized the harm that will come about because of climate change. Agriculture is already adversely affected. Catastrophic weather events are happening every week and our nation cannot afford the costs of repairing them. Do something now to fix climate change.

987. Lydia Lague

Frederick, MD 21701

We must use every possible means to mitigate climate change. The urgency grows exponentially every minute and there is no time to lose. Change is hard and it's most often propelled forward by either financial impact or emotional/spiritual connection. Big banks have the ability to expedite the changes needed in truly meaningful and impactful ways. Please, please help push this issue, for one of the most effective ways to move the needle on mitigating climate change.

988. Bob Crocco

Santa Barbara, CA 93105

We need a full commitment from all sectors to manage climate risks. We can no longer afford to ?kick the can down the road?.

989. Jennifer Gentile

Elmhurst, IL 60126

We need a transition in investments away from fossil fuels in order to build a healthy and successful future for us all. Investing in fossil fuels is not only harmful to the environment, but is a risky investment. In the short-term - society is transitioning towards electrification of the grid and transportation, to the obsolescence of fossil fuels, thus banks will not make their money back on fossil fuel investment projects. In the long-term - fossil fuels are destroying our environment and society, to the consequence of climate refugees and climate wars, which is not a good state for the economy at the bare minimum. Please make the transition away from complacency, and invest in a productive future, not a destructive one.

990. Melvin Woody

We need drastic revision of the current economy in order to prevent an international crisis. Eventually, people will go to war over water supplies.

991. Jeannine Murphy
Monterey, CA 93940
We need every person and business to join the fight against climate change and that includes banks! It is time to stop funding fossil fuels and start funding green technologies.

992. Terry Cramer
Seattle, WA 98144
We need everyone in every sector to focus on mitigating the negative effects of climate change.

993. Jennifer Stridinger
Boardman, OH 44512
We need industry leaders to consider climate change & begin to protect future generations. I beg you to take the issue seriously. An easy first step is stop investing in dirty fossil fuels. Instead, new technologies related to renewable energy need to be explored & investments should go there.

994. Brian Wilferson

Plymouth, MN 55442

We need investments into the future of our planet. That means NOT investing in fossil fuels.

995. Beth Tamminen
Duluth, MN 55811
We need policy in all arenas and at all levels that move our nation toward addressing the ominous dangers of climate chaos, which is already costing our country untold billions in disasters and adaptation. These rules are key to aligning finances with our future well being.

996. Jan Church
Woodbridge, VA 22193
We need some guidance for big banks that are fueling climate change. This is our chance to have a plan to help with slowing climate change. Everyone and every company needs to held accountable.

997. Martha Ronk

We need to act now. Once someone has realized that he has dug himself into a hole, the first step to getting out of the hole is to stop digging. Financial institutions which loan money for new global warming gas production facilities are a problem. They could be the beginning of the solution.

1000. Sandra Almand

Los Ranchos, NM 87107

We need to adapt now or face devastating consequences soon. Please invest in environmental and socially responsible businesses.

1001. John Markovitz

We need to dramatically reduce CO₂, and especially methane emissions, which are far worse than CO₂ for global warming, or we risk becoming another Venus.

1003. Carol Hinkelman
Rochester, NY 14616

We need to get off fossil fuels ASAP in order to prevent climate change from making the planet uninhabitable. No more drilling or building fossil fuel infrastructure. We have not time to waste.

1004. J Perino
Novato, CA 94945

We need to make sure that banks who lend $$ get that we should not be spending big $$ on issues or items that increase or add to the climate crisis. Banks need to be more responsible for their action that affects our environment and all of us too!!

1005. Tamara Szabo

We need to protect the health of the planet for future generations AND our finances; this can be approached simultaneously, a 2 for 1!

1006. Allyson Bishop
San Francisco, CA 94117

We need to put our money where our mouth is by not investing in fossil fuels and investing in low environmental impact energy sources!

1007. Sandra Resner
Greensboro, NC 27409

we need to stop investing in fossil fuels and start investing heavily in clean energy, or our children and grandchildren will pay heavily.

1008. Ethel Eitel

We need you to comply. The world needs to survive.

1011. Friday Gretchen
Ventura, CA 93003

We need your help to protect our future. I have divested from irresponsible companies, including financial institutions, but I'm just one person. We must be STRONG and our message supported by those who can see the broken system and improve the rules in favor of the Earth and humanity's survival.

We, the residents of Earth, are either together in this struggle to save our home planet - or we're not. I know where I stand. I know what's important to me and successive generations. But does a financial corporation? Does their thirst for profit supersede our need for a planet that isn't killing us? Are we in this together or not?

1027. Jim Kotcon
Morgantown, WV 26508
West Virginia's State Treasurer, Riley Moore, has been pushing misguided legislation to boycott banks and financial institutions that take climate risks seriously. This illustrates a lack of basic math skills and implicitly assumes that the cost of greenhouse gas emissions is zero, the one number we know is wrong. I urge you to assure that the true cost of carbon is considered in assessing investment risks.

1028. Neil Fisher
Sand Springs, OK 74063
We've been shouting for big banks to stop funding the destruction of our planet for decades only to be met with indifference. It's clear that regulatory action is necessary.

What will climate change cost me? I don't really know. Probably my house insurance will go up. I may even loose my house to a more powerful tornado than ever before seen. Fish may get prohibitively expensive because of lack of oxygen in the seas as the water warms. Other foods may get very expensive because of droughts and floods or extreme outbreaks of cold from the arctic. Wood my get expensive because of forest fires insect outbreaks. Perhaps we will have to use lot of resources to take care of climate refugees. Perhaps wars will break out over water and food. A stable climate is important. We are fast making our climate more and more unstable and dangerous. We must use all means to reverse this trend now.

When banks support "development projects" that destroy the world's forests and other carbon-retaining natural systems, we all pay for it. The cost is incurred from damage to watersheds and water supplies, loss of the earth's biodiversity, and devastation of the human societies and economic components that depend on functioning ecosystems.

Alternatively, if banks properly take into account climate risks and other ecological functions in their investment decisions -- and reject funding projects with adverse ecological impacts -- we will be headed for a more sustainable future for the planet, its wild inhabitants, and its human societies.

1037. Barbara and Jim Dale
Decorah, IA 52101

When banks take climate risk seriously, other powerful interests as well as many individuals will realize the existential crisis we face. Please lead in this matter.

1038. Patricia Martin
Indian Head Park, IL 60525
When I spoke to my financial advisor about guarding my portfolio from investments that would negatively effect climate change I found that the banker could not completely focus my investments to align with my valuing of environmental justice. I felt powerless. I need you to use your position to support the new guidelines. Climate change is not a future issue but a here and now problem to be addressed so that we have a future. Our banks must be made to see their essential role in creating a positive future for all.

1039. Sandra Moliere

Why should financial institutions be allowed to ignore something that is critical to the future of all Americans. Actually, all human inhabitants on this earth. Well really, to all creatures that inhabit this earth.

Not sure that's true? Just look at the number of creatures going extinct.
The financial industry should not be allowed to pay for and promote things that will certainly harm all earth's inhabitants.
The palmetto bug will move northward as temperatures rise. Is that what you want?
Or maybe we could be lucky and it becomes extinct.
Do the right thing - address climate crisis in all things that impact the future, and financing disasters should not be allowed.

1047. Samuel Garbi

Without appropriate action by the financiers of environmental pollution and climate -causing disasters, there can be no hope for correcting the present advance in destructive outcomes. Our banks and other global actors in creating wealth at a cost to our planet which cannot be corrected will continue unabated unless those of you in control of spending take appropriate action. Please think of the long-term consequences: nowhere on the planet will be habitable. Forget your big money: no where to utilize it. Forget escaping to Mars or wherever you think you can go: with no support from this planet, your escape will be futile.

1051. Susan Crosby
Napa, CA 94559
Without the funding of banks, the fossil fuel industry would have to get serious, at last, about its destructive actions. Without that, we're all looking at the end of life with any degree of dignity, food security, political and economic stability, and the natural world that we love. Or should!

1052. Jose Lopez

Years ago I moved my investments to socially and environmentally responsible companies. I applaud the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency for laying out how financial firms should manage climate-related risks.
